

CONTRIBUTORS

Adonis, Marios, Associate Professor in Clinical Health Psychology, Head of the Department of Social Sciences, University of Nicosia. Dr Adonis is a board member of the Cyprus Mental Health Commission and of the Disciplinary Committee of the Cyprus Psychologists' Registration Council. He has served two terms on the executive council of the Cyprus AntiDrug Council, a term as the National Delegate for the Republic of Cyprus at the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, and was the Substitute Member at the Management Board of the European Monitoring Center for Drugs and Drug Addiction for five years. Dr Adonis has also served as the vice president of the Cyprus Psychologists Association for two terms, served a term on the board of the Cyprus Psychologists Registration Council, and represented Cyprus in the Standing Committee on Ethics of the European Federation of Psychological Associations for two terms. He also works as a Clinician and is the Clinical supervisor for a substance dependence rehabilitation center in Cyprus. His research interests include psychosocial and cultural factors in cardiovascular, physical, and mental health, positive psychology, stress, and trauma.

Alexandrou, Haralambos, Special Scientist, Department of History and Archaeology, University of Cyprus. Dr Alexandrou holds a Bachelor's degree in History and Archaeology from Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, a Master's degree in Historical Research from the University of Nottingham, and a PhD in Modern and Contemporary History from the University of Cyprus. Among others, he has edited and published three volumes with sources on the EOKA Struggle and is the author of three monographs on the military aspect of the Turkish invasion in 1974. He is President of the EOKA Liberation Struggle Foundation (ΙΔΑΑΕ), President of the Cyprus Oral History Association (ΕΙΠΙΚΥ), member of the Cyprus Committee of Military History (ΚΕΣΙ), and member of the Council of the Historical Memory of EOKA Struggle (ΣΙΜΑΕ).

Christofi, Andreas, PhD Candidate, University of Cyprus. Andreas Christofi was born in Nicosia and comes from Agridia and Zodia. He holds a degree in History and Archeology and a master's degree in Modern and Contemporary History from the University of Cyprus. He is currently preparing a doctoral thesis on the Cypriot union movement and the ethnic role of the Church of Cyprus during British colonial rule, at the same University. He has worked on several research projects and his scientific interests focus on Modern Greek History with an emphasis on the History of the Cypriot union movement. In addition, he studies ecclesiastical and local history.

Diamantis, Evangelos, Professor, Hellenic Police Officers School. Dr Evangelos Diamantis is a graduate of the Law School of Athens and the School of Philosophy of Thessaloniki. He completed his postgraduate studies at Panteio University and was awarded a doctorate in public law. From 2020 he is full Professor of Police Law at the Hellenic Police Officers School.

Faustmann, Hubert, Professor of History and International Relations, Department of Politics and Governance, University of Nicosia. Professor Hubert Faustmann obtained his PhD in History from the University of Mannheim (1999). He is currently a Professor of History and International Relations at the University of Nicosia, where he has worked since 1999. Additionally, he is the director of the Friedrich-Ebert-Stiftung Cyprus office since May 2011. He was the editor in chief of the refereed journal The Cyprus Review from 2006 until 2016. He co-writes the annual reports about Cyprus for the Political Data Yearbook of the European Journal of Political Research. He is also editor and one of the authors of the monthly FES Cyprus Newsletter. Professor Faustmann is an expert on British colonial Cyprus and post-independence Cypriot history and politics. His research also focuses on hydrocarbon politics in the Eastern Mediterranean as well as the relationship between state and society where he focuses on Clientelism and Political Patronage. He is the author of Divide and Quit? British Colonial Policy in Cyprus 1878-1960, (MATEO (eBook), 1999) and is the editor/co-editor of several volumes, including: The Role of Education in Multicultural Cyprus (Cambridge Scholars Publishing, 2017); An Island in Europe: The EU and the Transformation of Cyprus (I.B. Tauris, 2011); Reunifying Cyprus: The Annan Plan and Beyond (I.B. Tauris, 2009); The Government and Politics of Cyprus, (Peter Lang, 2008); Britain in Cyprus: Colonialism and Post-Colonialism 1878-2006, (Bibliopolis, 2006). He has published numerous book chapters and peer-reviewed articles.

Hajisoteriou, Christina, Associate Professor, Department of Education, School of Education, University of Nicosia. Dr. Christina Hajisoteriou is an Associate Professor in Intercultural Education at the University of Nicosia. She was awarded a first-class honours BA in Primary Education (best graduate of the year) by the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens. She received annual curriculum awards by the Greek Foundation of National Scholarships. In 2006, she received her MPhil (Thesis Grade A) in Educational Research from the University of Cambridge. In 2009, she received her PhD in Education concentrating on Inter-cultural Education from the University of Cambridge. Her PhD research was funded by the Leventis Foundation via the Cambridge Commonwealth Trust. In 2012, she completed her post-doctoral research on 'The Europeanisation of intercultural education - The case of Cyprus', co-funded by the Republic of Cyprus and the European Regional Development Fund through the Research Promotion Foundation of Cyprus. She has been a co-recipient of more than 2 million euros in funding, mainly from the EU. She published 6 books and more than 70 articles and chapters.

Iakovides, Kyriakos, Lecturer in Modern History, Neapolis University Pafos. Kyriakos Iakovides was born in 1984 in Limassol. For the last five years, he has worked as a lecturer at Neapolis University Paphos. He received his bachelor's degree at Queen Margaret University, Edinburgh, and his postgraduate degree at Royal Holloway (London), and PhD at the University of Cyprus. He holds a diploma in sports journalism. He was a researcher at Eurodaktylios, a research program funded by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. His research interests revolve around the struggle for union in Cyprus and topical history. He is co-editor of three books on Cyprus villages (Salamiou, Omodhos, and Agios Theodoros Pitsillias). Author of Metternich's Europe and the Greek Revolution (1821–1827), Nicosia (Diorama publications), 2023, and Greek and Cyprus Left (KKE, EDA, AKEL) and the Cyprus Issue, Salonica (Epikentro), 2023.

Iordanidou, Sofia, Associate Professor of Journalism and Communication, Open University of Cyprus. Dr Sofia Iordanidou is the President of the Advanced Media Institute, Applied Research in Communication and Journalism. Since 2011, the MA Communication and Journalism has been developed and is being offered at the OUC, under her responsibility. She is the publisher of the Dimosiografia journal and the website manager of dimosiografia.com. She has extensively worked in the field of Journalism and Communication Strategy. In New York, she worked for the Voice of America and was the White House correspondent for newspapers in Greece, as well as responsible for the Walter Mondale pre-election campaign. In Athens, she was a journalist for both ERT and MEGA channels. Her long experience includes political consultancy and advisory to many companies in corporate communication. Dr Iordanidou has also created the Department of Communication and Press Office for MEGA CHANNEL, where she was director, and established NETNEWS, S.A., the first television agency in Greece, and NETRESULT, Ltd., a communication strategy company. She studied Italian and English Language and Literature at CUNY acquiring a postgraduate degree majoring in Comparative Literature at CUNY. She received her PhD completing the thesis Pirandello in Greece from Aristotle University of Thessaloniki. Her scientific research focuses on a) journalism and the functioning of the Media, as well as the challenges posed by the transition to the digital age and the social media, b) communication strategy, and c) Media Literacy.

Markou, Christiana, Associate Professor, Law School, European University Cyprus, Lawyer, C. Markou & Co LLC. Christiana Markou is an Associate Professor at the European University Cyprus and a practising advocate at C. Markou & Co LLC. She holds an LLB (Hons.) from the University of Sheffield (UK) and an LLM in International, Commercial and European Law from the same university. She also holds PhD in Law from the University of Lancaster (UK). She is also a legal researcher involved in important EU-funded research in various areas, including consumer protection, clinical trials and information security. She also deals with civil litigation and legal consultancy. Moreover, she is an experienced professionals' trainer training lawyers and other professionals in various legal domains, including consumer law and consumer protection. Following a nomination by the Embassy of the United States of America, in recognition of her expertise in data protection and IT law, she has participated in the premier professional exchange programme of the US State Department, the International Visitors Leadership Program (IVLP) of January 2020. She publishes in international scientific publications of esteemed international publishers, such as Routledge, Oxford University Press and Cambridge University Press. She authored 'Consumer Protection, Automated Shopping Platforms and EU Law' (Routledge, 2019) and 'Cyprus Tort Law' (Kluwer Law International, 2021, with A. Emilianides).

Moyssi Noly, PhD in Modern and Contemporary Culture, Historical Archives Administrator, Archaeological Research Unit, Department of History and Archaeology, University of Cyprus. Noly Moyssi has a PhD in Traditional Culture from the Department of History and Archaeology of the University of Cyprus. She was awarded the M.Litt. in Museum and Gallery Studies by the Department of History of Art of the University of St. Andrews in Fife, Scotland. She received her BA in Archaeology and History of Art from the National Kapodistrian University of Athens. She is an affiliate researcher for the Cyprus Institute and an affiliate lecturer in the University of Cyprus. As from 2019, she is the Administrator of Patticheion Municipal Museum, Historical Archives, Research Center of Limassol.

Panos, Dionysis, Associate Professor, Department of Communication & Internet Studies, Cyprus University of Technology. Dionysis Panos is an Associate Professor at the Department of Communication and Internet Studies of Cyprus University of Technology. He holds a Ph.D., MA, and BA in Communication and Media from the University of Athens and a BA in Law from Democritus University. His recent research work focuses mainly on Social Media and Web communication, Misinformation and 'Memory Construction', Digital Archiving and Algorithmic Memory, and Digital Oral History. Dionysis Panos also has extensive professional experience in the Political Communication area. He carried out numerous major political communication projects and served as a Member of the Board of Directors of the Greek National Tourism Organization (GNTO) and as a Member of the Board of Directors of the Greek National Center for Security Studies (KEMEA).

Paschali, Paschalis, Professor in Interactive Media and Animation, Head of the Department of Design and Multimedia, University of Nicosia. Professor Paschali's research interests include user interface design, interactive media project management, stop motion animation and visual communication. He has been presenting his research and animation short independent films at international conferences and animation festivals and has more than 25 years of professional experience in the fields of graphic and web design, multimedia and project management.

Theocharous, Stella, Post-doctoral Research Fellow, Centre for Social Research and Regional Development Heraclitus. Stella Theocharous received her BA in Greek Culture and Civilization from the Open University of Cyprus (2013) and her MA in Digital Media and Journalism from the Cyprus University of Technology (December 2015). She holds a PhD from the University of Haifa from where she graduated in 2021. Her research focuses on the cultural and historical geographies of public memory and commemoration in Cyprus, on the politics of commemorative (re) naming of streets, and the politics of national identity as reflected in public space. As from 2022 she is a post-doctoral research fellow at the Heraclitus Research Centre for Social Research at the Cyprus University of Technology.