

CONTRIBUTORS

Ioanna Alexandrou is a historian and philologist specialising in the Modern and Contemporary History of Cyprus, with a focus on the enclaved Maronites and Greek Cypriots, displacement, the role of women in sociopolitical affairs, education, and oral history. She is currently pursuing her PhD at the Department of History and Archaeology of the University of Cyprus, examining the social, demographic, and cultural dimensions of the enclavement phenomenon. She has presented and published her research in Cyprus and internationally, combining archival research, oral testimonies, and ethnographic approaches to preserve and highlight the historical memory of Cyprus.

George Camelaris, born in 1938, is a holder of an MSc degree (with Distinction) in Agricultural Economics and Rural Development. He was employed for more than 20 years as an Agricultural Economist in the Ministry of Agriculture and Natural Resources in charge of a wide spectrum of activities covering the international relations of the Ministry. He was a member of the negotiating team for the membership of Cyprus to the EEC. He represented Cyprus to many international meetings, seminars, symposia and conferences. He is the author of many articles in newspapers and periodicals in fields, in addition to Agriculture, related to historical, social and political issues. He was a member in the Organizing Committee and a lecturer of the Free Open University of Cyprus and a member of the Council of the Society of Cyprus Studies. He is the author of a dozen of books related to local and the national history of Cyprus. In 2015 he was honoured by the Ministry of Agriculture for his writings in fields other than his official duties.

Alexander-Michael Hadjilyra holds a BA in English and Greek Language and Literature, and an MA in Social and Political Theory. He has been researching the Armenian-Cypriot community since 2008, for which he has published a large number of articles, books and monographs. His master's thesis (2012) is titled: "The Republic of Cyprus and the Religious Groups".

Antigone Heraclidou holds a PhD in History from the Institute of Commonwealth Studies, University of London. Her research interests include Cyprus' colonial history, decolonisation, and cultural heritage. She is the author of Imperial Control in Cyprus: Education and Political Manipulation in the British Empire (2017) and co-editor of Cyprus: From Colonialism to the Present: Visions and Realities. Essays in Honour of Professor Robert Holland (2018), and of Emerging Technologies and Museums: Mediating Difficult Heritage (Berghahn Books, 2022).

Edgar Hovhannisyan is the Dean of the Faculty of History and Social Sciences of the Armenian State Pedagogical University, PhD, Associate Professor. Scientific interests: History of the Armenian Diaspora, Armenia-Diaspora relationship, History of the Catholicosate of the Great House of Cilicia. He is the author of approximately 70 scientific and methodological publications, as well as one monograph.

Petros Lois is a Professor at the University of Nicosia's School of Business and Head of the Department of Accounting, Economics, and Finance. He also directs the Joint Master's Program in Banking, Accounting, and Finance with the Hellenic Open University. He holds a PhD and MSc in Accounting and is a Certified Management Accountant (ICMA Australia) and Certified Global Business Analyst. He is a member of the IMA and IMarEST. Prof. Lois teaches Accounting, Accounting Information Systems, and Financial Management at undergraduate and postgraduate levels, and supervises master's and doctoral research. He is the co-founder and co-editor of the academic journal EuroMed Journal of Business (published by Emerald) and the author and editor of eight books. He has published over 50 articles in leading journals and presented his work at numerous international conferences. Prof. Lois is the scientific coordinator and a member of the examination committee for the recruitment examinations of secondary education teachers in Cyprus, a role he has held since 2017. Furthermore, he serves as a scientific advisor to the committee responsible for developing and authoring the Accounting textbooks for Lyceum A', B', and C' classes, under the auspices of the Ministry of Education, Sports, and Youth. He is also a certified trainer for the Powersoft365 accounting software. From 2014 to 2019, he was a member of the Board of Directors of the Cyprus Ports Authority. Before his extensive academic career, Prof. Lois worked in the fields of investment and stock market services, as well as in the shipping industry.

George Loizides is an Officer at the Fiscal Council of Cyprus and serves as Research Associate at the University of Cyprus and Adjunct Lecturer at the University of Nicosia. He holds a PhD in Accounting and Finance from the University of Cyprus, an MBA from the Mediterranean Institute of Management, MSc degrees in Operational Research and Finance from the University of Southampton and in Applied Mathematics from the National Technical University of Athens, along with professional certifications as a Certified Management Accountant (CMA) from the Institute of Management Accountants (IMA), USA and (Professional Risk Manager) PRM from Professional Risk Managers' International Association. His research interests include empirical capital markets research, Initial Public Offerings (IPOs), corporate finance, financial economics, disclosure, and international financial reporting. He has published in several international refereed journals including The International Journal of Accounting and the European Journal of Accounting, Auditing and Finance Research. He has taught in both undergraduate and graduate programs, with teaching interests spanning Financial Risk Management, Advanced Corporate Finance, Financial Accounting, Managerial Accounting, and Advanced Quantitative Business Methods.

Stella Mala is a collaborating teaching and research staff member at the University of Nicosia, Cyprus, and a practising lawyer registered with the Cyprus Bar Association. She holds a Ph.D. in Law, an LL.M. in International and European Commercial Law, and degrees in Law and Political Science & International Relations. Her research focuses on media law, internet law, and human rights. She has received a research excellence award.

Katerina Morphi has a bachelor's degree in Economics, a master's degree in Accounting and Finance and a PhD degree in Financial Accounting and Corporate Governance. She is a lecturer of financial accounting courses at the University of Nicosia. Her research interest is financial accounting and reporting. More specifically she is interested in the motivations that managers have to engage in earnings management. She is also interested in how corporate governance variables can act as disincentives for earnings management. Finally, Dr. Katerina Morphi is interested in how the accounting standards provide managers with opportunities to engage in earnings management.

Anastasia Papamichael is a Partner at A & E. C. Emilianides, C. Katsaros & Associates LLC, one of the most prestigious law firms in Cyprus. She leads the firm's Public and Property Law sectors and is also an active member of the Regulatory Law sector. Anastasia has broad experience in litigation before all Cypriot courts, as well as international courts. Regarding her academic background, Anastasia studied Law at Middlesex University and holds an MSc in Development and Security from the University of Bristol. She is currently a member of the Adjunct Faculty at the University of Nicosia, Law Department, and has previously served as an assistant lecturer in inheritance and property law for the Cyprus Bar Association's training program for trainee lawyers.

Christos Papastylianos is an Associate Professor of Public Law at the Faculty of Law of the School of Law, University of Nicosia. He holds a PhD from the European University Institute in Florence. His research fields include comparative constitutional law, constitutional theory, minority rights and immigration law. He is author of monographs, essays and articles in Greek and English. His recent publications include 'Populism and Constitution Making Process', in Akritas kaitatzis, Eleni Kalampakou, Ifigeneia Camtsidou, Christos Papastylianos, Costas Startilatis (eds), The People's Constitution: The Populist Transformation of Constitutional Law? (Springer) "The Cypriot Doctrine of Necessity and the Amendment of the Cypriot Constitution: The revision of the unamendable Amendment Rules of the Cypriot Constitution through a Juridical Coup d' Etat,' (ICL, 17/3, 2023), "Citizenship: Cyprus", in David Law (ed), Constitutionalism in Context (Cambridge University Press, 2022), "Human Rights Issues Arising from the Implementation of Sharia Law on the Minority of Western Thrace—ECtHR Molla Sali v. Greece, Application No. 20452/14", (co-authored with Nikos Koumoutzis), in Religions 2019 and "The Cypriot Doctrine of Necessity within the Context of Emergency Discourse: How a Unique Emergency Shaped a Peculiar Type of Emergency Law", in The Cyprus Review 2018.

Melita Stephanou Charitou is an Associate Professor of Finance and Accounting. She holds a BSc degree in Accounting, MSc in Finance and PhD in Finance and Accounting. Her research interests are: financial analysis, capital market, international financial management and credit analysis. She has published in several international refereed journals, among those, Accounting and Finance, International Journal of Business and Social Research (best paper award), Investment Management and Financial Innovations, Journal of Business and Economic Research, Journal of Economics and International Finances. She has taught in both undergraduate and graduate (MBA) programs. Teaching interests include: Financial Management, Corporate Finance, Financial Accounting and Managerial Accounting.

Georgios Siachamis is a PhD candidate in international relations at the University of Nicosia and has published a significant number of articles on the above subject in Greek and international journals. Since 2020, he has been serving in the Greek Government's Presidency.

Georgios Tsaousis is Assistant Professor of Public Law at the School of Law of the University of Nicosia and a Lawyer at the Supreme Court and the Council of State in Greece. He completed his postgraduate and doctoral studies at the Law School of the University of Dijon (France). His doctoral thesis was evaluated with excellent (très honorable) and published. He has taught public law at the School of Law of the University of Thrace, the International University of Greece and Constitutional law at the School of Police Officers. He has written and published teaching manuals on administrative procedure and articles in legal journals (Greek and foreign). His scientific interest is focused on issues of administrative law and administrative procedure, protection of fundamental rights with an emphasis on personal data, immigration policy and management of asylum issues as well as coherent application of EU law.